

In its original response to our survey in May 2020, Primark said it had committed to pay in full for all orders that were finished and/or in production due to be handed over for shipment by 17 April 2020: https://media.business-humanrights.org/media/documents/files/documents/Primark_response.pdf

At that time, Worker Rights Consortium had marked Primark as having made 'no commitment to pay in full for orders completed and in production' on its Covid-19 tracker and provided this analysis on Primark's actions: <https://www.workersrights.org/updates-and-analysis/#April29Primark>

In an updated response sent in August 2020, Primark has indicated its commitment to pay in full for completed orders and utilise or pay for any finished fabric liabilities: https://media.business-humanrights.org/media/documents/BHRRC_Response - Amends - Final 5AUG20 3 m9S2ZAo 1.pdf

Worker Rights Consortium has since moved Primark on its tracker and provided this update: <https://www.workersrights.org/updates-and-analysis/#Sep10Primark>

Primark briefly extended its payment terms to 180-days as indicated in its original response, but as of 18 June returned to its usual 30-day payment terms.
