Policies and commitments
General
Human rights policy - UNGPs	Human rights are fundamental at Cargill and our actions are driven by our values and our culture of putting people first, championing action and embracing our responsibility to protect people and planet. We are committed to respecting the human rights of all Cargill employees and all those whose lives and livelihoods we touch. Cargill complies with local laws and respects internationally recognized human rights throughout our own operations, supply chains and the communities where we do business. We take guidance from international standards and declarations, including the United Nations Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights (UNGPs), the International Bill of Human Rights and the International Labor Organization Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work. As a signatory company of the United Nations Global Compact, we also are committed to promoting human rights. ### Human rights due diligence and supply chain

Process for assessing human rights risks and impacts	Step 1. Identify and Assess: We identify potential and actual adverse impacts by first gathering information and assessing specific country, commodity, and industry related risks. For identified higher risks, we conduct a human rights assessment and/or environmental assessment. We then prioritize the risks within our own operations, supply chains, and business relationships. --	---	--	---

Heightened human rights due diligence in Conflict Affected and High Risk Areas (CAHRAs)	In certain countries and supply chains where we operate, there are particularly high, systemic risks of adverse human rights impacts. This means that we need to put in place heightened human rights due diligence to assess these risks and remediate, where appropriate. Human rights requirements in supplier code/requirements	We expect our Supplier Partners to uphold the principles and due diligence obligations outlined in Cargill's Human Rights Policy and to prioritize the safety, well-being, human rights, and dignity of all individuals whose talents and hard work help us deliver our products and services.	Supplier Code of Conduct, pg 5	https://www.cargill.com/doc/1432101078794/supplier-code-of-conduct-pdf_en.pdf

Access to remedy

Grievance mechanism for own employees	Cargill commits to working with parties to resolve complaints and conflicts in its own operations and supply chain through an open, accessible, transparent and consultative process. Under our grievance framework, when internal or external stakeholders raise concerns about sustainability, human rights, or environmental practices (relating to Cargill or our suppliers or business partners), we will deploy a holistic grievance approach to address those concerns in a timely, transparent, equitable and participatory manner . . . Grievances will be managed through Cargill's Ethics Open Line system. Please note that grievances related to Cargill plantations may be addressed through a local, culturally appropriate grievance procedure, unless a community or their representative has opted to follow this mechanism. ## Lobbying and ethics

Public statement or endorsement in support of mandatory human rights and environmental due diligence	Cargill welcomes the proposed policies. We believe that greater transparency supported by a broad enabling environment in producing countries will accelerate the efforts to date by companies and drive positive transformation for the cocoa sector. And yet we also want to make sure that the full set of social and environmental risks are taken into account to avoid unintended consequences. We believe that engagement and dialogue between the EU and producing country governments will be crucial and that broad capacity-building on the ground will be required. --	---	---	---

Anti-bribery and anti-corruption policy	We never offer, accept or receive bribes, kickbacks or other corrupt payments to or from others, including government officials. We ensure that we understand and strictly follow all applicable anti-bribery and anti corruption laws, including when we interact with government officials.
