Policies & Commitments
General
Human rights policy - UNGPs	At NIKE, we believe in and are committed to respecting human rights. As best practice for understanding and managing human rights risks and impacts, we look to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Labour Organization's Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work, the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights, and the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises. Our commitment to respecting human rights is more specifically described in many policies, standards and strategies, including Code of Business Conduct – Inside the Lines, Supplier Code of Conduct and Code Leadership Standards, and Privacy Policy as well as our Diversity, Equity & Inclusion Strategy. These commitments apply to our employees, communities, consumers, sponsored athletes, and includes our own operations as well as the partners and suppliers we work with in our manufacturing and logistics supply chains. Human rights policy - ILO Core Labor Standards	See above
Forced labor & prison labor	NIKE has strict requirements in our Code of Conduct prohibiting any type of forced, bonded, or indentured labor at supplier facilities. We know that such prohibitions by themselves are not enough; we must also address key risks which collectively can contribute to a situation of forced labor. One such risk is workers paying any recruitment-related fees to obtain a job, which is a particularly common risk for foreign migrant workers. In 2008, NIKE was one of the first companies to establish a supply chain policy with explicit requirements on the employment of foreign workers, including the prohibition on workers paying for their employment. Human rights defenders & civic space	NIKE works to provide safe, confidential and accessible channels... We treat all reports seriously and will investigate promptly. Nike does not tolerate retaliation in any form.	Human Rights and Labour Compliance Standards	https://about.nike.com/en/resources/human-rights-and-labor-compliance-standards
Gender equality and women's empowerment	NIKE works to create a level playing field for our employees and all athletes we serve, and we also work with our suppliers to ensure fair opportunities for workers at the factories manufacturing our products. NIKE's Code of Conduct and Code Leadership Standards have detailed prohibitions on discrimination in hiring, compensation, promotion, discipline or any other aspect of employment. The majority of workers involved in the global production of apparel and footwear are women. Many of those women have unique vulnerabilities relative to their male peers and can therefore be at risk for exploitation and abuse. Nike has long recognized these risks and has specific standards to protect women workers. Our requirements for suppliers include equal pay for equal work, safe work in connection to pregnancy, childbirth and nursing, prohibitions on discriminatory pregnancy testing or forced use of contraception, and provision of maternity benefits. Indigenous Peoples	No evidence
Living wage
Living wage, own operations	No evidence
Living wage in supply chain	We believe that a skilled, valued and engaged workforce is key for growth and sustainability. Nike is committed to working with our suppliers around the world as they seek to develop strategic compensation capabilities (i.e., competitive wage and benefits systems that progressively meet their workforces' basic needs, including some discretionary income), because every worker has the right to a standard of living that adequately supports them and their families. Human Rights Due Diligence & Supply Chain

Process for assessing human rights risks and impacts	NIKE uses both internal and external third-party audits to assess compliance with our requirements and local laws. These assessments take the form of audit visits, both announced and unannounced, to measure supplier conformance to NIKE's Code of Conduct, Code Leadership Standards and local laws. NIKE audits assess forced labor risks – including the employment of vulnerable worker groups such as foreign migrants, interns and temporary workers, and high-risk practices such as payment of recruitment fees and restrictions on freedom of movement – and child labor risks. Suppliers are monitored on a schedule based on their performance.	NIKE, INC. Heightened human rights due diligence in Conflict Affected and High Risk Areas (CAHRAs)	We conducted, in good faith, an RCOI with respect to the athletic footwear, apparel and equipment products we contracted to manufacture that contain or may contain 3TG that are necessary to the functionality or production of the in-scope products (we refer to these 3TG as the "Covered 3TG"). Our inquiry was reasonably designed to determine whether the Covered 3TG originated in the Covered Countries or came from recycled or scrap sources. For our RCOI, to the extent applicable, we utilized the same processes and procedures as for our due diligence, in particular the systems, processes, and procedures contemplated by Steps 1 and 2 of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development's Due Diligence Guidance for Responsible Supply Chains of Minerals from Conflict-Affected and High-Risk Areas, including the Supplement on Tin, Tantalum and Tungsten and the Supplement on Gold (Third Edition, 2016) (the "OECD Due Diligence Guidance"). Also see indicator on RMI	Nike Conflict Minerals Report 2024 [4]	https://about.nike.com/en/resources/conflict-minerals-policy
Affected stakeholder engagement	NIKE believes that effective two-way communication between management and workers is key to creating strong and growing businesses. Some of our supplier's facilities have one or more formal unions where their elected representatives serve a critical function in representing and negotiating on behalf of workers and as an important partner in broader communications. Human rights requirements in supplier code/requirements	We expect all facilities to respect the rights of workers and advance their welfare, with particular care for people with unique vulnerabilities such as women, migrants, and temporary workers. To understand and manage human rights risks and their impacts, Nike looks to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Labour Organization's Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work, the U.N. Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights, and the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises.	Nike Code of Conduct (2025)	https://media.about.nike.com/files/efd7c3b8-de95-41fe-b158-8c27e484f81c/Nike-Inc.-Code-of-Conduct-2025---English.pdf

Senior level responsibility for human rights	The Purpose Committee directs and oversees the end-to-end integration of NIKE's work in diversity and inclusion, community, labor, and environmental impact. It challenges our business to better understand our social and sustainability impacts, to set ambitious targets for improvement, and overcome obstacles in achieving progress, and helps to shape NIKE's evolving approach to transparency. The Purpose Committee meets regularly to review these targets, performance, and disclosures.
