1. Documents

KnowTheChain aims to decrease the reporting burden for companies. Therefore, we will review information available on your company's public website. However, to ensure we take into consideration all relevant documents, we invite you to provide us with links to any statements, reports, webpages, or documents that you would us to take into account as we review your company's approach to managing forced labor risks in its supply chains.

NVIDIA Response: NVIDIA works to reduce the reporting burden for companies through a uniform system approach with the EICC-ON platform. Therefore, we utilize our EICC membership along with other members to request/ provide documents through EICC-ON. Suppliers only need to complete 1 assessment to submit to multiple customers. We utilize the Corporate and Facility level SAQs as we work with our customers and suppliers, but do not make the completed SAQs available publicly. More information about this process can be found in our Sustainability Report on pages 39-41:

Our forced labor policy can be found here:

And we discuss these issues in our global code of conduct:

Note: Integration of forced labor allegations in the 2018 benchmarks

Our 2018 KnowTheChain benchmarks will evaluate whether companies respond to forced labor allegations in their supply chain, whether they provide remedy, and whether remedy is satisfactory to the victims (see benchmark methodology for details).

We have not identified an allegation regarding your company's supply chains that meets our criteria for inclusion (see methodology FAQs for further details).

Note: Should an allegation arise during our assessment period, to receive the relevant scores, we will invite you to issue a letter of commitment covering the requirements set out under each indicator.
